Join us for an interactive Dale Carnegie experience designed to equip young professionals with essential skills crucial for success. We'll begin with learning how to walk into a room with an attitude and approach that allows us to meet new people and connect effortlessly! While networking is a powerful skill, it's just the beginning of new relationships. We'll take it a step further and begin exploring how to communicate more effectively. Do you ever wonder why some people connect and communicate more easily than others? They just seem to "get us." Whether we're communicating one on one or with a group, we'll explore how to "get our audience" so we can do the same! When we consider our audience, and are proactive about preparing our communication, it's easier to reach them and get the results we want.

Presenter: Ellen M. Valudes, Vice President, Dale Carnegie of Philadelphia
